

12. Empty bedroom

Here's where you sang, here's where you played.
Here are your hopes and dreams.
Here's where you laughed, and cried, and danced.

Your childhood still sings to me.
Here's where you tested out your wings,
Here's where you slowly learned to fly.
Here is your childhood left behind, just as you're leaving me behind.

Your life moves on.
And mine stays here.

I'm so proud of you, I'm so pleased for you,
I'm glad I did this, put my life on hold for you.

Here's where you prayed, here's where you grew.
Here's where your plans were made.

I'm just not sure what's next for me.

Your childhood still sings to me.
Here's where you tested out your wings
Here's where you slowly learned to fly.
Here is your childhood left behind, just as you're leaving me behind.

Your life moves on.
And so does mine.

Given this time again, your childhood days again,
Still I would choose to put my life on hold for you.

I wouldn't have missed this for the world.

Your childhood still sings to me.
Here's where you tested out your wings
Here's where you slowly learned to fly.
And all the memories are now mine
We will have always had this time

I'm moving on.

What a ride it's been for us,
And what a time we've seen you and me.
I'm glad I chose to put my life on hold for you.

I wouldn't have missed this for the world.
I wouldn't have missed this for the world.
